Christy Egun is the executive director of the Center for Community Health Improvement (CCHI) at Massachusetts General Hospital. Christy leads the work of more than 38 programs, including three community coalitions, that make up the CCHI portfolio. Prior to 2022, she served as CCHI's Director of Boston Partnerships, Equity & Inclusion for 5 years. Christy's experience cultivating and maintaining strong relationships with community organizations, elected officials, and other key constituents has led to many successful community-based collaborations for CCHI.

With a passion for Diversity, Equity & Inclusion (DE&I) and a dedication to reducing alarming health disparities, Christy collaborated with YW Boston to bring Race Dialogues training for all CCHI staff. She also served as the inaugural chair of CCHI's staff DE&I committee. Over the past decade, she has led much of the hospital's youth work, helping to provide local public-school students, many first-generation, with opportunities leading to college, graduate school, and careers in healthcare.

Christy's public service efforts include serving as the board chair for Youth Guidance Becoming a Man/Working on Womanhood Boston and serving on the advisory boards of Facing History and Ourselves, Good Sports, and the West End Boys and Girls Club. She is a member of The Boston Club and Delta Sigma Theta Sorority.

Christy previously worked for Big Brothers Big Sisters of Massachusetts Bay driving marketing and volunteer recruitment. Earlier in her career, she was an academic advisor in the University of Minnesota's Upward Bound Program, helping to direct the academic performance of low-income, first generation, college-bound high school students to post-secondary success. She received her Master's degree from Emerson College.
